

ABSTRACT

A process for manufacturing nuclear fuel pellets through sintering of a material containing uranium dioxide obtained from a powder from a power originating from a process for a conversion of uranium hexafluoride.